Nissa Rost-Rothman	Denver can do better. I want to see this!
Janine Vanderburg	Because I want Denver to be the most walkable city in the country!
Gosia Kung	Because "people are pedestrians by design" our city needs to be designed and built for people on foot.
Alyssa Alt	Everyone walks.
James Shaffer	Walking is important to me and should be important to the city of Denver!
Scott Wolfson	I'm too fat so I need to walk more.
Marie Giedraitis-Edgar	I want Denver to plan healthy communities. Planning neighborhoods that encourage walking is essential.
Waverly de Bruijn	I walk everywhere and it's important for pedestrian views to be heard!
Ray Ehrenstein	We want folks to use light rail or bus to get to the coming Levitt Pavilion in Ruby Hill Park. If the Evans Overpass is made more attractive and artfully visible, we believe we can get folks to leave their cars at home and walk from the Evans Light Rail station to this events venue and leave their cars at home!
Jonathon Stalls	We have so drastically replaced the way we are built to move, see, understand, process, and connect with accommodating the auto and lifestyles of sitting.
Isaac Schloss	Public right of way safety and to make a difference not only in my community, but in any community.
Mollybeth Lombard	So Pedestrians have a voice in how Denver becomes a walkable city.
Wyndi Skillrud	The aggressive bike riding on Denver sidewalks makes me feel helpless. I'm talking about routes where the sidewalks are not part of a bike route, and the cyclist is not riding 6 mph within one block of their destination. Illegal bike riding on sidewalks seems to be a pervasive issue here. I look forward to getting involved with Walk Denver.
Liz Thomas	In the first 4 pages of today's Denver Post, there were THREE articles about pedestrians or cyclists being killed by cars. Here's to smart urban planning and design to change those numbers.
Lattina Adams	Walking is good for the mind, body, and soul as well as the environment. While other modes of transportation are important, walking is the one mode of transportation that most everyone can participate in. In addition, cities that are pedestrian-friendly may hold property values better due to the enhanced quality of life.
Stacy McDonald	Our beautiful, fitness and spirituality conscious city needs to accommodate for greater walkways!
Cathy Brennan	The beauty and history of Denver neighborhoods needs to be accessible on foot for better enjoyment.
Vicky Hardy	Walking keeps me connected to the community and my soul.
Timothy Frees	Walking is the single most useful and simple way to be healthy and connected all at once.
Christie Murata	We have such a wonderful climate, and people who love to be outside, let's encourage walking and keep it safe!
Sarah McGregor	I've been walking and cycling in Denver for over 45 years; it's pretty good, but needs to be better!
Rachel Hultin	Walking is good. Good for communities. Good for people. Good for the planet. It connects us with our neighborhoods, our health and one another. If Denver truly wants to be a great city, it needs to prioritize pedestrians. Ages 8 to 80, its a universal modality! Walk on!
Jean MacLeay	I love the changes in Denver to make it a more pedestrian city. But more needs to be done and it needs to spread & link the suburban neighborhoods.
Frank Locantore	Walking is healthy, friendly, and extremely important to those who don't drive.

Cynthia Vitale	I have walked all my life - for pleasure and as a de-stressor. In our fast paced society that we have grown into. Human beings need a place just to walk to help reduce the pace of life we live in. For this to support our physical and mental health it has to be safe and perceived as safe. Without a sense of safety it will be of no benefit. With a sense of safety the benefit is beyond measurable. Please, for the future of our citizens, add the Pedestrian Advisory Committee
Chris Englert	Walking makes me happy.
Judith Weaver	Helps to keep Colorado # 1 in the national fitness category
David Rapp	Because pedestrian activated signal timing at Colfax and Lafayette is ridiculous.
Elise Lubell	A walkable city is more vibrant and alive.
Charmaine Webb	I do a lot of walking in Denver and it would be nice to have sidewalks that are safe to walk. By safe I mean well maintained.
Cindy Snalam	As we become a denser community in West Colfax, with new and revitalized housing, new commercial infill development and a modern transportation system at our back door, my neighbors and I desire to safely and easily walk around our neighborhoods, to and from our new destinations, and to the train stations and bus stops that serve our neighborhood. We have numerous areas of our neighborhood with no sidewalks at all and many sidewalks are broken, cracked, heaved, or otherwise deteriorating. We lack pedestrian ramps at far too many corners, so the disabled and those pushing strollers have difficulties moving about the neighborhood. Its time we get working on ways to improve this infrastructure so we have a safer, healthier and more connected community.
Chad Reischl	As an urban planner I realize how important our pedestrian infrastructure is to those 1/3 of Americans who cannot drive, because they are too young, too old, disabled or simply cannot afford car ownership. We need to speak up for them and improve the sidewalks for their sake.
Niccolo Casewit	Walking can be the best way to get around!
Dawn Cayo	The weather in Colorado just invites a long morning walk.
David Rolfe	I spend a lot of time walking and bicycling and improving pedestrian accessibility is vital to both good neighborhoods and our local economies.
Marmee Colfer	Lack of sidewalks limits where I can walk safely. Was promised sidewalks in 1993 bond issue
Steven Chester	Whether you bike, drive your car, ride the train or bus, or walk, everyone begins and ends every trip as a pedestrian.
Celia VanDerLoop	Walking is good for my health, for our environment, for our local businesses, and for our communities.
Emily Fox	Walking is better for the environment as is biking.
Ellyn Rucker	It's healthy...I think Denver has too much traffic...walking neighborhoods invite more businesses...(more jobs)...tourists...community.
Larry Hase	We visit friends in Denver.
Susan Marshall	The vibrancy of Denver depends on the ability to explore the city by walking
Mark Raeburn	As a European I see how unhealthy Americans are - even in Colorado (one of the healthier states) it is very apparent that people need to walk and bike more and not rely on the car so much. I am also an advocate and board member for Denvers Art District on Santa Fe and we need infrastructure help from the city as our sidewalks are way too narrow - almost illegal!!!
Sean Lockett	My wife and I sold our car a few years ago and walking is one of our primary ways of getting around LoDo.
Emily Brett	Because EVERYONE is a pedestrian
Pamela Quigley	Walking more benefits individuals' health and the environment. Make Denver a more Walk-Friendly place!

Michele Fuerst	Health, livability, reduce car dependence for so many reasons
Michelle Reichmuth	Walking rocks!
Antwan Jefferson	I am looking forward to the Green Valley Ranch and Montbello communities being included in this discussion.
Ryan Coss	Denver is a great city and this would take it to the next level
Ben Bates	I walk and bike everywhere. Rarely drive. I would love to live in a city where I and my family can walk around safely.
Patrick Lee	Walking creates more interaction and respect for our environment.
PL Henry	Because walking is humanity's most basic and accessible means of locomotion. A city built around the automobile is necessarily hostile to pedestrians, and among them those of the most modest means. Pedestrianism makes our streets safer, humanizes us by removing the veil of automotive anonymity, and does our bodies good.
Kimberly Kinnison	Everyone is a pedestrian at some point during the day. It is important to acknowledge this and prioritize pedestrian safety and experience.
L. Lynn Acton	Health of citizens, environmental considerations, economic externalities (creating a better and more inviting place to live, work, and play--enticing others to visit and / or move here)
Rick Plenge	Because we are pedestrians at some point during our daily travel and we need to be reminded that walking is the most basic form of transportation that deserves the highest level of accommodations.
Melanie Sloan	The pedestrian realm is everyone's realm--we all need it, use it, and can be made safe or not based on the considerations given to it through planning.
John Fernandez	For health, livability and equity reasons. A city that caters to its most vulnerable populations serves all of its citizens.
Jackson Turnacliff	I want more and better maintained sidewalks in my neighborhood.
Ellen Hokanson	I walk every day, sometimes for practical reasons like shopping at my neighborhood market and other times for exercise, conversation, and serenity. Please focus on how to make walking in Denver easier! There are still many obstacles!
Redding Bacon	I understand the impact that a more bicycle and pedestrian friendly urban environment will have on our community.
Ann Long	By walking we learn our neighborhood, neighbors and local businesses. The later prosper with new walk-ins; we all observe the quality of our neighborhoods and are safer among these acquaintances. We're a young and vigorous city. Let's allow our visitors to observe the fun of such a vital city.
Jonathan Wade	I like to ride my bicycle 3-4 times a week from my work in Downtown Denver to Westminster, and I'd like to see improvements in trails, trail marking and safety.
Jeff Reichmuth	I love the idea. I really like the pedestrian lifestyle in Europe and want the same in Denver.
Mary Jo May	Love walking
Lesley Millhouser	Let's keep Denver safer for pedestrians, and greener for the world!
Daryl Kinton	As a former RTD board member and participant in the Denver Pedestrian Plan over a decade ago (which recognized the need for this) I am glad to see this finally getting some traction. It is long overdue!
David Kosakowski	Most of Denver seems pretty walkable already. Any initiative should focus on specific problem areas/corridors where pedestrian access is needed, such as where freeways separate neighborhoods from their nearest commercial/business districts.
Daniela Borja	I live and work downtown and would like to see Denver grow into its full urban potential. We need to build a clean, safe, and thriving environment that will attract environmentally conscious residents and companies to make Denver their home

Donald May	My wife and I are in our seventies, and walking is a big part of our exercise plan.
Chris Coates	Walking everywhere is the best!
John Folsom	Walking should be given as much, if not more, priority that driving a car.
Tracey Holmberg	I am the Injury Prevention Coordinator at Swedish Medical Center. Pedestrian injuries and fatalities are on the rise so making a pedestrian friendly environment would help keep community members safe.
Kayla Gilbert	Walking infrastructure is important for all of us!!
Christopher Smith	This box is not large enough to list all the reasons.
Micaela Duffy	We all need more outside activity and the ability to do it safely is so very important.
Rens Rosenbaum	I have low vision & I walk a lot. I use RTD buses, rail & access-a-tide taxi
Mary Ann Haug	We people in wheelchairs are pedestrians too.
Melissa Spahr	To improve the health and happiness of people living, working and visiting Denver
Jason Smeak	Let's improve Denver's position as a ped and cycle-friendly city!
Keith Billick	As a urban designer / landscape architect I believe its important to design and build communities that are multi-modal and accessible to all residents.
David Wortman	I think the future health of Denver - economic, environmental and human - depends on having vibrant, walkable, living streets.
Heather Garbo	I believe that walkability is an extremely important factor in enhancing a city's street life and safety as well as improving the quality of life and growing sense of community for its residents. I love to take my young son out on foot and show him the vibrancy of our neighborhood. It's a wonderful learning experience that we just couldn't recreate in any other way. From running errands on foot to enjoying dinner at our favorite spot, the walkability of our neighborhood has a hugely positive impact on our everyday life. However, pedestrian safety plays a huge role in where we choose to go. I'd love to feel more comfortable taking him out of our neighborhood to explore more of our great city on foot and know that we can do this safely.
Wendy Stewart	I walk my dogs in Denver almost everyday.
Lisa Walvoord	Walking is the most accessible form of exercise. It is good for our physical, mental and economic health. Thank you WalkDenver for your leadership in this important effort!
Rob Groll	I walk almost everyday and see firsthand that a comprehensive plan for pedestrians is needed in Denver. Thanks for your work on this.
Noelle Melchizedek	One of the reasons I moved to Denver and continue to chose to live here (despite high rent costs) is because I want my tax payer dollars to support initiatives such as this to make this City even better!
Nancy Cole	Street activation makes healthy people and healthy neighborhoods
Elizabeth Shaffer	Being able to walk makes city living much more enjoyable. I think we need more pedestrian awareness in Denver
Sharon Rowe	We moved to the Golden Triangle because we wanted a pedestrian lifestyle, and it had a very high walk-ability score. Let's continue on that theme around the City of Denver!
Teresa Caballero	I love walking and support the idea of promoting a more walkable city. I would love to see more education and ticketing directed to people biking on sidewalks and putting pedestrians in danger. I am very supportive of biking as well but many people seem to ignore the rules and it is a big issue in some areas.
Nicole Huguenin	I run Wild Dream Walks and a walkable city is one of most important to me.

Carol Mielke	I walk way more than I drive my car!
Dawn McKenzie	I love to walk, but I live in the suburbs where urban sprawl is a way of life. I have to drive everywhere. I would love to see more "walker-friendly" areas.
Jack Armstrong	I'm a downtown Denver homeowner and would like the city to be more pedestrian oriented.
Matthew Studenny	"A more walkable Denver will support a happier, healthier and economically thriving future for its residents and businesses"
Jeffrey Busby	My family lives in Denver and much can be done to improve walkability
Carol Maclennan	Two of my biggest priorities - the health of a community's residents and its economy - are clearly influenced by how well the community is designed to be walkable for people of all ages and abilities. Walk Denver's proposed policy initiatives will move Denver forward on both fronts.
Anthony Lechua	I love walking, it's the best way to see and get to know any city.
Aldrich Barnes	Besides the obvious reason I think more people out walking will help curb crime.
John Prentice	Health & fitness. Quality of life. Quality of city.
Bryan McClelland	A walkable city is a functional city
Bruce Meyer	I want to feel safe and respected as I walk on the streets and cross the boulevards!
Doug Brown	Despite many major improvements in walkability, Denver still puts cars first in many of its designs which make for difficult walking and biking environments. The city should implement a plan which balances the needs of walkers, bikers and drivers.
Jen Clanahan	For health reasons and for a livable community
RNO of the UPCC President	We are the RNO of UPCC, and would like more walking friendly areas.
Karen Miller	I can walk but not ride very well, so the bike Denver doesn't work for me. Good continuous sidewalks free of places to trip me up are what I look for.
George Beal	I'll be living there one day.
Eugene Howard	I support walkability in my community and all others throughout Denver. Let's make Denver a healthy, vibrant pedestrian-first place!
Fritz Clauson	Walking and our pedestrian infrastructure are too often overlooked in our City!
Brett Goddard	We need to get bicycles off the sidewalks
Eleanor Brophy	Everyone is a pedestrian at some point in their day, it is the most fundamental and sustainable mode of transportation.
Troy Rawson	I walk! Sidewalks in many parts of town are an after thought or very inadequate (eg narrow sidewalk merged with curb). That is if they exist at all which they don't in many places.
Mary Dunn	Encourage walking--not driving!!
Phillip Zakrzewski	I am a pedestrian, a bicyclist, and an RTD user who eschews the car culture that is currently enveloping our city. There are so many areas, where I live and work, that are downright dangerous for pedestrians even though we live in a dense neighborhood in which most people should be walking. In many areas the proper infrastructure just doesn't even exist and pedestrian safety is clearly not even considered at all.
Rod Lane	My wife and I walk daily for exercise and shopping. We live in a walkable neighborhood and would live nowhere else.
Amy Lawton	My first choice for getting somewhere: Walking.
Liz Fuselier	Our City needs to retain its rich vibrancy and diversity.
Rachel Norkin	Walking is healthy for people and the environment. We should make neighborhoods walkable and take advantage of time out of our cars, enjoying the sights, sounds, smells around us.

Ryan Ballew	Denver will only grow intelligently if its growth can be sustainable. Walking supports that.
Liz King	I believe WalkDenver is moving us in the right direction for the HEALTH of all multi-county Denver area citizens. Thanks!
Paula Telck	Walking is the best way to see and experience a neighborhood, a city and a state.
Thomas Hart	Health and safety are benefits of a comprehensive approach to making the city more walkable.
Shawna McMahon	We chose our neighborhood for its walkability, but there are still aspects that could be improved. The Monaco & Hampden and Locust & Hampden intersections are dangerous for pedestrians.
Graham Johnstone	I believe that walking is an integral part of the urban experience.
Alejandro Henao	Because is the right thing to do!
